But he has constantly been the victim of the laws of Congress. Every lobby in the National Capitol has been hostile to the interests of the farmer. Not one has been there in his favor. Having no part in the making of the law, it is not strange that the law has never been manufactured in the interest of the farmer. The owner of the soil, the man on whose land and whose labor all our material pros-perity is built, has recently, and for the first time, appeared in our National pol-ities. His interests are of foremost im-portance in our public economy. They ought first to be considered, by one labor ought first to be considered by our law-making power. The tendency toward factions, toward "Unions," toward Granger Associations, toward the advancement of special classes at the expense of others, toward the division of our people into quarreling cliques, is one to be regretted. But the fact is not so much to be regretted as the cause of it. The farmer has put in an appearance in our politics. The tillers of the soil

Ah! well; we may not know, indeed,
The whys, the whereform of each life
But this we know, there's One who sees
And watches as through joy and strif
Each life its mission here fulfills.
And only He may know the end,
And loving Him we may be strong.
Though storm or senshine He may see
